ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An adapter component capable of connecting to a connector component, and an adapter execution unit for accepting an execution request from an EAI system to initiate the adapter component are provided as an adapter program. With these components, data outputted from the EAI system is received as input, and converted into a format available for the connector component. The converted data is outputted to the connector component.